How are SBA 504 Interest Rates Determined?

The exact interest rate on all SBA 504 loans is determined at the time a 504 debenture pool is sold to the private market and is based on current market conditions, which fluctuate. While this may not immediately make sense, there is actually a simple reason for it...

Despite a lot of misconceptions, money for SBA's 504 Loans does not actually come directly from the SBA. Instead, all 504 loans being funded in any given month are combined into what's called a debenture pool, which is then marketed, priced, and sold to private investors.

SBA has contracts with major financial institutions to handle the technical aspects of the sale process. Once an agreement is reached with the Underwriters on the sale price of the debentures, the rate of your loan is determined.

Interest rates on 504 loans are pegged to an increment above the current market rate for five-year and ten-year U.S. Treasury issues with maturity options of 10-, 20-, and 25 years. Once set, the rate on the 504 loan is fixed for the life of the loan. Fees associated with administering 504 Loans are added to the debenture rate, and the total is known as the effective, or "all-in" rate.

Keep in mind...all SBA 504 loans are funded using the same market sale process, so interest rates in any given month are the same nationwide...regardless of CDC.

Typical Financing Structure:

- 50% of the project's total cost is provided by a participating lending institution, usually a bank
- 40% is provided by Growth Corp as a 504 loan
- 10% equity is provided by the applicant small business/borrower (higher equity requirements exist for start-ups or special purpose properties... the equity required will increase by 5% if one condition exists or by 10% if both)

Is Interim Financing Necessary?

Usually, yes, because there is often a delay between the closing and the funding of an SBA 504 loan. Since the 504 loan is funded through a bond sale after the closing has taken place, the documentation of project completion must first be sent to the SBA District Office for submission in the next available bond pool. Based on the date of closing and the submission schedule of the District Office, the time period could be as little as 5 weeks or up to two or three months, especially for 10 year 504 loans that only have debenture sales every-other month.

In most cases, the bank involved in the project provides an interim loan and handles the disbursement of those funds for the project. The bank also typically waits until the SBA has approved the 504 loan and issues a Debenture Authorization before they close on their interim loan.

Once the 504 loan funds, the money is wired to the bank (or non-bank interim lender) to pay off the principal amount of the interim loan. The length of the interim financing depends on the nature of the project. Turnkey projects typically involve the shortest interim financing period. However, for ground-up construction projects, that interim financing period could last up to a year or even more.
